HONGKONG, OCTOBER 2ND, 1889.

THE report of Mr. E. L. B. ALLEN, Acting Consulat Pakhoi, on the trade of that port for the year 1888 reached us by the last mail. Mr. ALLEN says that as a field for individual foreign enterprise the port would geem to-be-more discouraging-than-ever; and it now no longer boasts a single reeident British merchant. The trade of the port is nevertheless increasing, and the commercial value of Pakhoi as an open port has ships, junks, and other vessels are cautioned to now been placed beyond doubt. In connection with the increase in the import trade Mr. ALLES mays that a considerable part of Crawford & Co., we have received one of the old it probably represents a further transfer of the carrying trade from junks to steamers ford & Co. are always ready to supply whatever any in continuance of the process noted by Mr. HOPKING in his report for 1887. It seems to a Western mind a great pity to have this sum wastefully thrown away. The Director of the Chinese Telegraph Company has come to Peking to see the Russian Minister H.E. Coumany, and we hear that the latter will proceed to Tientsin during the latter part this month, but whether in connection with the settlement of this affair or no we are unable to say. But what is past cannot be helped.

Referring to the correspondence between the manager of the Eastern Extension Telegraph Co. at this port, the Colonial Secretary, and the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce, with reference to the proposed direct cable from Hongkong to Singapore, the Electrical Review Bays:was at first boldly refused by the native oustoms on another place we print a correspondence conthe ground that none had yet been issued for that coming a proposed—"Direct cable from Hong-locality. Then, after reference to Canton, the firm kong to Singapore." As it is suggested that this cable should land on the territory of the British North Berneo Company, touching also at Labuan and Sarawak before reaching Singapore, it hardly morits the name of a "direct cable. The manager in China of the Eastern Extension, Australasia, and China Telegraph loupany, when writing to the Colonial Secretary at Hongkong on the subject of the above cable, says that "the existing cables are amply sufficient to carry a considerable increase the present traffic." and goes on to point out that, as "the additional traffic due to the establishment of the proposed new cable would It would thus, porhaps, he excessive to say that the be entirely insignificant in proportion to the large outlay, my directors instruct me to state It is so far satisfactory to find that a refund that the extansion could only be carried out in consideration of the undertaking being sub sidised by the governments interested." but the trouble and annoyance caused may as the cost of these cables would be consi derably over £400,000, it is not difficult to imagine the amount of the subsidy demanded to pay interest, working expenses, and sinking fund, or don't care for transit passes here" is, we a cable whose value for commercial purposes efility in war-time would be simply ail. Such a cable, from a political point of view, can only be looked on as reserve stock on which an enemy may draw as his needs dictate. It would be much wiser, and much

The Russian railway projector had nothing whatever to do with it or the question of the adoption of a railway system in China. In an otherwise able article on railway progress, the Chinese Times falls into an error in placing the call by the Imperial Government for reports by the maritime Viceroys Governors of provinces affected on the general question, as subsequent to the abandonment of the Tung chow line. The fact is that it was the very opposition to the Tungchow line which pro duced the call for the reports. The question was too important and the apposition was too powerful, and hence the reference of the question to the high officials of the Empire. If the Tungchow line which had been sauctioned and was afterwards abandaned, not alone by sirong opposition offered before but after the call for reports, had been previously abandoned, in the direction of the Temple. Moreover the Vicerov Chang and Governor Lin Ming-chuan ruled over provinces which were pover intended to be affected by the present railway movement. At first there was no intention whatever of substitting the question to the provincial authorities; the quation had excourse included. Elsewhere in the same article it is said that the Government' no longer needs persuasion to be convinced of the necessity for railways, and that all the members of the Board of Admiralty were in favour of it. The Vicercy was very augry at the rider, which was appended by the Cabinet to the railway memorial sent up by the Admiralty in favour of its construction. The Vicercy dreaded the opposition and delay. H.E. had already entered into pecupiary and other arrangements for material, etc., which the delay and the probable opposition would seriously have jeopardised. Even now any occurrence such as another fire in the Palace er a new breach in the Yellow River might be interpreted by the opponents of railways as an indication of the displeasure of heaven. - Daily of electricity consists of an electric reading-lamp, which is being fitted to the carriages on the main line of the South-Eastern Railway... It is on the principle of the "put a penny in the slot" automatic machines. The apparatus is situated. inches by three. The light is of five-candle power, and is obtained by the introduction of a penny at the top of the box, and by a subsequent pressure of a knob, and will last for half an hour, extinguishing itself at the end of that time aut mutically. If the light be required for an indefinite period, a penny every half an hour will suffice. The light can be extinguished at any moment by means of a second button provided for the purpose. One of the special features of the invention is that, if the instrument is out of order, the penny is not lost, as it is in the present machines. It drops right through and comes out at the bottom of the box, so that it can be recovered; and the same result happens in the case of any coin other than a penny. Each carriage is fitted with an accumulator which supplies the electricity.

pointing out many disadvantages which will attend the use of the new smokeless powder, which was tried at the recent review at Spandau. The duties of the guard and the patrol will be made immeasurably more difficult by the absence of the smoke and noise, which, in the case of the attention to, and pointed out, the position of the enemy. On the other hand, it will render capital cervice to the franctireurs, whose object it is to secape from and confuse the guard. Sudden attacks and surprises will become matters of such deily occurrence that outposts and patrols will have to be immensely strengthened, and kept at the utmost tension of watchfulness. Firing drill and discipline must necessarily be made much stricter than at present. The mo t important fault of the smokeless powder. horrible eight of men piled in heaps, dying and dead, their dreadful sufferings, their agonised end. Each man, fighting behind a thick fog of amoke, which was only waited saids now and then by a gust of wind, or lightened by a pause in the firing, felt a certain sense of screened security, mistaken, indeed, but none the less reasuring, until he himself was struck by the fatal bula severe wound often renders necessary, will be immediately observed by the men, and rob them of that feeling of perfect confidence they ought to have in their officers.
